How will you incorporate STEM careers related to this topic into the class?

What are the learning objectives of the class?

Tech Trek is an informal learning environment, and it is critical that the content of the courses are effective, as well as exciting and inspiring. The below information will be used to help AAUW and camp staff to collect data about the courses offered to girls at each Tech Trek camp and consider how this content aligns with the learning objectives set forth by camp staff.

Please check all that apply to the curriculum you will present at Tech Trek:

- Aligned with current local, state, or national math and science standards.
- Provides enriching content that is beyond current school curriculum for seventh and eighth graders.
- Provides examples of real world applications of STEM.
- Prompts participants to apply STEM content to new situations.
- Includes active and problem-based learning activities (ex: open-ended research, designing problems, carrying out investigations, etc.)
- Includes opportunity for participants to develop and use models, analyze and interpret data, or use mathematics and computational thinking.
- Builds skills such as critical thinking, problem-solving, creativity, collaboration and teamwork.
- Prompts innovation among participants with creation of new products.
- Creates excitement by providing positive experiences and dispelling negative misconceptions about STEM.
- Class/workshop demonstrates a connection between content and career opportunities that require a strong STEM background.
- Connection of STEM to participants own interests and experiences.
- Challenges stereotypes for girls and STEM.
